One Year Ago Today

by Brandon Price on February 1, 2012

Today we woke up to a wind chill temperature of -27°F. All of Europe is experiencing severe cold weather right now, and the schools in Kharkov have been closed to keep the kids out of the elements. Today I saw a man dunking himself in this -27° weather! Crazy!

It was one year ago today—February 1, 2011—that Katie and I arrived in Kharkov. It was one year ago today when we officially joined the work here and began making this foreign city our home. We knew no one besides our teammates, and this city of a million and a half people felt massive.

To those of you who have helped make this happen, we thank you from the bottom of our hearts. To those of you who lift us up with your constant prayers, emails, texts, paychecks, cards, phone calls, and packages, thank you. You've been the team we've needed, and we absolutely love you for that.
